1875, NORTH LONDON

In a vibrant hub of more than 190 block printing companies active during the 18th and 19th Centuries, John Perry, son of a Cambridgeshire merchant is carving out a name for himself. Perry, with discerning taste and innovative foresight harnesses the power of industry to complement traditional woodblock printing methods prevalent at the time.

A true pioneer of innovation and with fashionable forethought, he develops a range of techniques including pan coating – used to create deep, rich, tactile stripes and strié prints and reintroduces flocking, a process imitating cut velvet originating in Holland in the late 17th Century. But perhaps Perry's most notable contribution to the wallpaper industry was the creation of a process to imitate silk. Using a solution of ground mica, he was able to develop a lustre-like silk effect on the paper which is still used today.

Over the course of the next 60 years, John Perry acquired many of the old pear printing woodblocks from neighbouring firms as they closed down – the timber of which offers the right balance between durability of use and the practicalities of cutting the block. In time becoming custodian of one of the largest collections of traditional woodblocks in Europe. The blocks in the archive and the log of commissions attest to some of the most important decorating schemes of the 19th and 20th Centuries; from stately homes such as Chatsworth House, Blickling Hall and Audley End to Buckingham Palace, Windsor Castle and the wallpaper designs of A.W. Pugin featured in the Palace of Westminster – a collection which is still faithfully maintained today.

Following his death in 1941, one of John Perry's largest customers A.P. Cole, proprietor of Cole & Son (Wallpapers) Ltd acquired the company John Perry had dedicated his life to. With the father and son led team came the enhancing ability to exhibit the best in quality wallpaper manufacture from showrooms on aristocratic Mortimer Street in central London.

Continuing the legacy of innovation, in 1948 Cole & Son created one of the first screen print studios in Europe in response to the revolutionary new Contemporary design movement, conceiving the now iconic wallpaper patterns of the 1950s and 1960s including the ever-present Woods and Palm Leaves designs.

Today, the Cole & Son archive is a beautiful and inspiring chronicle of artistic styles and expressions spanning three centuries. Consisting of approximately 2,000 block print designs, 500 screen print patterns and a huge quantity of original drawings and wallpapers, amongst which are some of the most important historic wallpaper designs in the world.

On occasion, the vast archive is a source of new designs within collections. Elements from historic prints and patterns are carefully selected, adapted and coloured by artists in the design studio and printed by craftsmen to produce wallpapers faithful to the character of the original document, yet contemporary in feel. With a commitment and passion for design excellence the Cole & Son studio continues to produce innovative and beautiful wallpapers; current collections reflect a long and distinguished history as well as a continuing passion for artistic design and quality craftsmanship.
